

What is gas used for:

- Almost all our apartments have gas hobs.
- Some apartments also use gas for heating and for hot water.

Where the gas comes from:

- The three main sources of gas are the public network, a large gas tank located outdoors, or a small "bombola" indoors, often in a kitchen cupboard or on the balcony (illustrated on the left).

Please note:

- A bombola gives you your own personal source of gas, so you have full control over how quickly it is used, but when it runs out you need to organise replacement with a new one.
- A bombola used for cooking will last for several months. If you use it for heating as well, it may only last a few days.
- Please inform us immediately if your bombola is running low.
- How do you know? In the bombola the gas is liquid. If you swing it back and forth a bit, you should feel the "sloshing" of the liquid which will give you an idea of how full it is.
